An indispensable primer and troubleshooting guide for beginning indoor growers. Written by a newbie for the newbies, this is a unique grow guide, tailored specifically to indoor cultivators using fluorescent lights. From setting up your grow room in a safe and energy-efficient way to drying your bud without alerting the neighbors, Henry Woodward walks you step-by-step through the entire process of pulling off your first successful crop without the difficulty and confusion of most grow books. Many new growers find themselves overwhelmed by the sheer volume of cultivation information out there, thanks to the comprehensive coverage of marijuana growing techniques that exists today. Most new growers don't need to know about tending to outdoor landrace sativa; they need to know how close to set their lights to their plants and when to water a soil mix. Marijuana Daily Gardening strips away all the unnecessary background noise and focuses, in an easy-to-follow and heavily illustrated way, on exactly how to take your grow room from empty to bursting with bud on your first-ever try. Granting access to the grow notes of a trusted friend, this guide details the trials and tribulations that Henry faces through the daily tending of his plants, and unlike other grow books, doesn't cover up the errors he makes or pretend that everything will go off without a hitch. Unlike other growers, Henry tells you when he's burned his plants by placing them too close to the lights, so that you can learn from his mistake. He tells you when he got a little too drunk and forgot to water in the morning. He lets you know how not to do things, because he's done it all! With a diary-style layout, sidebars on important topics and fantastic full-color photos to drive the information home, this book is everything the rookie grower will ever need to walk them down the road to success. Whether you know everything about sterilizing your pots and your space but can't quite decide what lights to choose, or you've no idea about how to set up a grow space but are an expert in keeping thrips at bay, Marijuana Daily Gardening will endow you with all the knowledge you need to be a successful, consistent gardener and all with the hands-on advice of a fellow rookie.

About the Author Throughout his extensive teaching career, Henry Woodward has taught people the fundamentals of Marxist theory, the basics of string theory and how exactly to remove an egg yolk from an egg white using only a plastic bottle. Now, he's teaching them to grow pot. As a native of Northern California and a Medical Marijuana user, it was only a matter of time until Prof. Woodward stumbled into the world of growing his own green. Not long after his first successful grow, he became a member of a local co-op and got his hands on some killer NorCal genetics. After stumbling through a few more grows, with varying degrees of success, it dawned on him that if he had a beginner grow guide detailing all the mistakes he was making, he might not be making them himself. To that end, he began keeping a daily diary of his marijuana exploits and taking photos of his baby greens every single day. Right from germination to harvest, he set his ego aside and told his audience of his many issues; from getting too drunk and forgetting to water to letting his plants burn on the lights. With the only grow book to comprise a troubleshooting guide and a how-to-grow book, Henry Woodward now brings his years of teaching experience to a new market: potheads. Even though deep down he knows that he's been teaching potheads all along.
