Fascinating book! Well done!By Janet CarltonFascinating book! Well done!

The Mimbres cultural florescence between about AD 1000 and AD 1140 remains one of the most visually astonishing and anthropologically intriguing questions in Southwest prehistory. In this revised edition, noted Mimbres scholar Dr. J. J. Brody incorporates the extensive fieldwork done since the original publication in 1977, updating his discussion of village life, the larger world in which the Mimbres people lived, and how the art that they practiced illuminates these wider issues. He addresses human and animal iconography, the importance of perspective and motion in perceiving Mimbres artistry, and the technology used to produce the ceramics. This lively, engaging work will interest archaeologists, art historians, and all people who enjoy the beauty of Mimbres pottery. Featuring over one hundred new illustrations and insights drawn from a lifetime of study and contemplation, this book is much more than a revised edition; it establishes a new standard for the artistic interpretation of a classic Southwestern culture for the new century.

[This edition] remains the single most comprehensive source on [Mimbres Painted Pottery] and an important addition to any library on Southwestern archaeology and American Indian Arts. --Barbara J. Mills, Journal of Anthropological Research, vol. 62 (2006) With new edition of Mimbres Painted Pottery, Brody has added a new tassel to the scholarly study of this fascinating Native American people. --Max Carocci, The Journal of the Royal Anthropological Institute This updated study -- with its authoritative text and several hundred color and black-and-white illustrations -- is the first and last word on Mimbres art and civilization. --Bruce Dinges, The Journal of Arizona History (Summer 2006) About the Author J.J. Brody is professor emeritus, Department of Art and Art History at the University of New Mexico and former director of UNM's Maxwell Museum of Anthropology.
