Christoph Martin Vogtherr, Stephen Duffy : Miniatures in the Wallace Collection before purchasing it in order to gauge whether or not it would be worth my time, and all praised Miniatures in the Wallace Collection:

The 4th Marquess of Hertford and Sir Richard Wallace were both passionate collectors of miniatures, exquisite small paintings in watercolor or enamel, generally made for private contemplation and one of the most popular mediums of portraiture in an age before the advent of photography. This book presents one of the major British collections of miniatures, a group of over 330 works which formed part of the generous bequest to the British nation made by Lady Wallace in 1897.
