Woo Bought another pack from this company earlier (about two to three weeks ago). That pack was horrendous for origami, as the dimensions were completely off. I technically bought this at the same time as the earlier one, but it wasn't released until last week. This time, it seems they attempted to address that issue, but it still isn't completely correct. For a project, I needed to make four duplicates of the same thing (which then would be put together to make the final project). I picked four different patterns, one for each side, and proceeded to fold my pieces. Since I was suspicious of the paper from the previous pack of paper I bought from this company, I decided that, as a test, I would fold each piece from a different direction. In other words, each piece would have the umbrella pattern in a different orientation: with the project standing up, one side would be upright, the next upside down, et cetera. Each one was slightly off with the dimensions. While there of course should be some very minor differences in size due to human error, this is pretty disappointing. As someone who has been folding origami for over 15 years, I have become good enough at origami to know that this isn't a "me" issue. The biggest piece is .4 cm bigger than the smallest piece, with the other two in between that. That's unheard of: as origami paper, it shouldn't matter which direction I start folding - it should all be the same. I had high hopes, because I wrote my review of the previous pack before they released this pack, but it seems that they still haven't fixed it all that much. To be fair, I found one sheet in the entire pack that was exactly 21 cm by 21 cm (which was a great moment), but it's disappointing for an origami company to not even be able to produce origami paper with the right dimensions. 0 of 0 people found the following review helpful.
